Leo's Handmade Gifts

Name: _____ Date: _____

Two weeks before Christmas, Leo counted the coins in his piggy bank. He had only three dollars and forty cents. That was not enough to buy presents for everyone in his family.

"Gifts don't have to come from a store," Grandma said. "The best ones come from your heart."

That gave Leo an idea. For his little sister, Mia, he made a puppet out of an old sock with button eyes. For Mom, he wrote coupons for chores, like "I will set the table without being asked." For Dad, he painted a picture of their dog, Pepper. For Grandma, he wrote a poem about her garden.

On Christmas morning, Leo felt nervous as everyone opened his gifts. Then Mia hugged her sock puppet and would not let go. Mom laughed and used her first coupon that very night. Leo decided that making gifts was even more fun than buying them.
